FOURTH SCHEDULE
[Regulation 23.]

The following examples and notes are intended to illustrate and act as a guide for ascertaining the capital values of periodical payments of disablement and death benefits—

EXAMPLE 1

STAGE 1 (Ascertaining age nearest birthday):

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Year</th>
<th>Month</th>
<th>Day</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1975</td>
<td>8</td>
<td>28</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1954</td>
<td>2</td>
<td>28</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Age nearest birthday on date of entitlement is 21 years
(*) Six months and below are disregarded

STAGE 2 (Calculation of capital value):
Multiplying factor for age 21 nearest birthday
Males: 1105 (see column 2 Table 1)

Capital value to be transferred to the Disablement and Death Benefits Reserve
= 1105 x $24
= $26,520
EXAMPLE 2

Disablement benefits sex – FEMALE: Weekly rate of benefit: $12.50

STAGE 1

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>YEAR</th>
<th>MONTH</th>
<th>DAY</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1976</td>
<td>2</td>
<td>14</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1943</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>16</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Age nearest birthday on date of entitlement is 33 years.

STAGE 2

Multiplying factor for 33 years nearest birthday
Females = 966 (see column 3, Table 1)

Capital value to be transferred to the Disablement and Death Benefit Reserve = $966 x $12.50 = $12,450.

EXAMPLE 3

Death benefit – WIDOW: Weekly rate of widow’s benefit = $10.00 (without dependent children).
Period of payment: So long as the widow satisfies the conditions for eligibility or death which ever event is earlier.

STAGE 1

Age nearest birthday of the widow on the date of entitlement has to be ascertained as in the case of the preceding examples. Suppose the age is 47.

STAGE 2

Multiplying factor for 47 years nearest birthday.
Females – 859 (see column 3, Table II – A).

Capitalised value to be transferred to the Disablement and Death Benefits Reserve = $859 x $10
= $8,590

EXAMPLE 4

ORPHAN’S BENEFIT
Weekly periodic payment: $10.
Age nearest birthday of the orphan on the date of entitlement = 8 years multiplying factor for age 8 years = 432 (see column 2 Table II – C).
Capital value to be transferred to the Disablement and Death Benefits Reserve = $432 x $10 = $4,320

EXAMPLE 5

DEPENDENT PARENTS:
Death benefit (periodical payment) awarded to
(a) dependent father: $27 per week
(b) dependent mother: $27 per week

Both parents alive. Father aged 70, and mother age 60, on the date of entitlement to death benefit.
Weekly rate of employment injury benefit to which the deceased was entitled: $54.
Capital value to be transferred to the Disablement and Death Benefit Reserve:

(a) in respect of father = $410 \times 27 = 11,070 \,*

(b) in respect of mother = $662 \times 27 = 17,874 \,

Total to be transferred \(28,944\)

* Factor for age 70 – see column (2), Table IIA
 Factor for age 60 – see column (3), Table IIA

The following points should be noted:

Note 1.—

For ascertaining the capital value of periodical payments to any dependent beneficiary, the appropriate Tables – Males, Females or children have to be used in the manner indicated in the example given above.

Note 2.—

The capital value must be ascertained as on the date of entitlement to periodical payments of disablement or death benefit. Payment of these benefits will be made only on a determination made by a determining authority. Any periodical payments already made for those benefits will therefore have been calculated already and entered into the accounts. The new capital value to be entered into the accounts will therefore relate only to the difference (if any) between the new rate of periodical payment and the one which it replaces either wholly or in part. If the new rate of periodical payment is an increase on that which it replaces, the capital value of the difference will be entered in the accounts in accordance with regulation 20(3). If the new rate of periodical payment is a decrease on that which it replaces, the capital value of the difference will be entered in the accounts in accordance with the aforesaid paragraph but with the debit and credit in reverse.

Note 3.—

If there is a provisional assessment, a similar procedure should be followed to that for a normal capital value, but the multiplying factor should be the number of weeks in the period of provisional assessment, and for this purpose the nearest age at commencement is not necessary. At the expiry of the provisional assessment, if the claim is assessed as permanent, the method described in Note 2 should be followed; the date of entitlement to disablement benefit in such an event should be taken as the date from which the permanent disablement claim re-commences on such review.

Note 4.—

The provision relating to the calculation of capital values of disablement and death benefits and their entry into the accounts relate only to periodical payments and are not applicable to grants.

Note 5.—

If the award of disablement or death benefit has been made in a financial year different from the one in which entitlement therefore commences (i.e. if the decision is to apply retroactively) the amount of the net capital value for the difference in the rate of periodical payments, ascertained in the manner described in Note 2 above, should be entered in the accounts in the year in which the award is made.

In cases where a retroactive increase of benefit is paid for previous years, entries thereof will be made in the accounts of the year in which it is paid, in a similar manner to entries of current benefits paid in that year.
In those few cases where a retroactive decrease of benefit is awarded the over-payments which have been made on the former rate of periodical payments will normally be deducted from future benefits and only the net amount paid will be entered in the accounts.
